The Soberans "The hero is something that every man longs to be. The greater a man's powers are, the more difficult it is for him to be. That is why the hero's life, for all its dangers, becomes sacred in some way, and why he works not only to accomplish his mission, but also to triumph." - J.R.R. Tolkien The Soberans Michael Liebenberg, Mike Roster, and Kaseen Lomax, three friends from Pretoria, South Africa, created this webcomic series with the objective of exploring the inspiration, ideologies, motivations, and conflicts of man, as well as to reflect on the nature of love and loyalty. The rise of the triad In the Triad, gangs are splintering and business is booming. The repentant gangsters have turned to the two biggest technological advances of the modern age: the smartphone and the computer. Streetcrime has become a science, efficiently investigated and improved by the European and American gangs. And the technology is run by the Chinese—a powerful, if terrifying, new force in the world. The day they came for you For 6 weeks, you went unnoticed. On a bright, warm morning, nothing in the Blue District was out of place. Then, a team of mercenaries stormed into your office on a mission to search every room, steal your most valuable computers, and burn it all. You're on a honey trap, and the moment you surrender, your life is ruined. Your only defense is the Antids, an entirely new species of robotic assassin, designed to wipe out information from a single source. You're the first to be captured, and your only hope is that they capture you before you wake up. Forged in fire When the deal went sideways, you and another friend became patients in a deadly experiment, quickly losing control and becoming a single mass of organic cybernetic steel. Now, in the lab, the doctors still seek to find the key to your magnificent individuality. But you don't want to become one of them. You want to see the outside world again. You want to live, and to fight back.
