. . The fate of Boinx's Windows version of FxTiles awaits releaseThe Duke Ellington Parkway, connecting the Empire State Plaza to the Albany International Airport, is making a major change in travel time for those walking to work. It's been about one month since the transition began, and the changes are already showing up. This week, the city of Albany closed a section of the Parkway to traffic in anticipation of widening and will be doing so again this weekend for another section of the roadway, said the city Department of Transportation. In both instances, new traffic-calming measures will be added, with the projects set to be complete in two weeks. The Duke Ellington Parkway connects the Empire State Plaza and the Albany International Airport. The Albany City Department of Transportation, in cooperation with the DOT, will close Duke Ellington Parkway, from North Pearl to Spring and Fourth Streets for two weekends as part of the Duke Ellington Parkway Reconstruction Project beginning Saturday, July 6, and lasting through Saturday, July 13. The project, which began this fall and will be completed by April 2017, will widen the roadway from four lanes to six lanes between North Pearl and Spring Streets and from Fourth to North Pearl streets. The city will also replace the storm and sanitary sewers in the area, work that will cause the closure of various roadways surrounding the project. To help with the transition, road crews will add specialized traffic-calming measures to the roadway and ramping areas. These measures will include an asphalt median and temporary traffic signal at North Pearl Street and Fourth Street, as well as temporary pedestrian barriers. The roadway will be closed in three segments as follows: Saturday, July 6 through Saturday, July 13, North Pearl Street from North Broadway to North Pearl Street will close to traffic between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., Monday through Friday. Saturday, July 13, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., North Pearl Street from North Broadway to North Pearl Street will be closed. Saturday, July 13, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Fourth Street from North Pearl to North Broadway will close. The DOT's Construction Management Department will monitor activity on and within the roadway. During the closures, drivers should expect lane reductions and street detours as traffic will be routed around the construction zone. c6a93da74d
