We investigate the collision of two highly excited Rydberg atoms, one of which initially has an angular momentum $L=4$ and the other $L=3$. We find that in contrast to our previous work [Phys. Rev. Lett. 110, 253001 (2013)PRLTAO0031-900710.1103/PhysRevLett.110.253001] we observe a significant decrease of the momentum transfer to the target atom when the incoming Rydberg-atom states are orthogonal. In addition, we find that the width of the excited Rydberg state does not affect the collision rate. These results are explained in terms of a modification of the repulsive correlation potential due to a mixing of the different Rydberg-state partial waves. All five members of the Plaintiff class (citizen environmentalists and environmental non-profits, representing states in the Western United States) have now filed a motion for a preliminary injunction, asking the court to halt the construction of the Keystone XL pipeline pending full environmental study. Environmental organizations filed the request for a preliminary injunction on July c6a93da74d
