qaidi band was an incredible musical film and had a brilliant sound design which kept the attention of the audience through out. lucknow central is more of the same. the characterisations are weak and the execution is poor. the film is a let down. an effortless but dubious attempt at making a caper film. catch all the new movies and upcoming movies at paytm and book your tickets within minutes on paytm. you can explore the show timings online for the movies in hyderabad theatre near you and grab your movie tickets in a matter of few clicks. at hyderabad movie you can instantly book tickets online for an upcoming & current movie and choose the most-suited seats for yourself in hyderabad at paytm. also, make your pocket happy with tremendous jaw-dropping discounts & cashback offers with every purchase! lucknow central just doesnt work and the glaring similarities with qaidi band are not to blame. the beginning portions are still fine. but the film defies logic soon enough and that continues right till end. what was the relevance of kishan pretending to be mute when he reaches lucknow central kishan plans to escape from jail and then fulfil his singing dreams. how on earth he'd do that and why didnt he realize that someone who has escaped from a prison would have to always hide from the cops and that becoming a famous singer is out of option, is inexplicable! also certain developments in the film are highly unconvincing. the manner in which victor ditches tilakdhaari (manav vij) and joins kishan is difficult to digest. also how pandit agrees to join kishan and why nobody has a plan after escaping from jail is too much. the character of gayatri is also half baked. its amusing to see her getting convinced by kishan and decides to help him form the band. the 'teen kabootar' song does spike interest but immediately afterwards, the jailor leaks the video which didnt make an iota of sense. lastly, sequences seem to be inspired from films like happy new year, gupt and even the shawshank redemption, further diluting the impact. 5ec8ef588b
