* Calculate prices for gold, platinum, silver and diamonds! * A Microsoft Excel XLSM macro makes it easy to enter price information into the calculator and run multiple simultaneous calculations. * Data files can be created and exported. * Results can be printed, saved as PDF or used in reports. * Calculate prices for gold, platinum, silver and diamonds! Goldamite Pro is a simple, but practical XLSM tool with built-in macros and functions that automate the process of gold, platinum, diamond and silver valuation. The utility can receive information from the New York Stock Exchange on spot precious metals prices and users are also free to define their own quotations. Given its structure, the tool requires Microsoft Excel 2003 or later to function. Once this hurdle is passed, users can start the process of valuation. There are multiple cells that can receive users' information and inserting data is a simple task of matching the column header with the available information. Compute prices for diamonds from their physical characteristics For example, if one requires valuation for an 18k gold item, simply entering the grams in the appropriate cell will result in the utility displaying the corresponding payout. The same algorithm is applied to silver, platinum and diamonds (with their respective standards). The utility can also be employed by pawn shops, for example in determining the price for gold-filled jewelry items or for collectable U.S., Canadian or Mexican gold and silver coins. Once satisfied with their results, users can export results to PDF files. The tool provides pawn shop owners and precious metals traders with a viable valuation method In conclusion, Goldamite Pro is a good tool for anyone in the business of trading gold, silver, platinum, and diamonds. 1.05 LPD Chain Grappling Exercise Review Get the world's best bodyweight exercises, videos, free workouts and the latest workout tips from Pro Bodyweight, a cutting-edge website with a reputation for revolutionising...
